The Natl Mills and the Panic. But for the panic the present business season would have been one of unusual prosperity for Wheeling. Trade set in early and brisk, and was progressing in a early and brisk, and was progressing in a very satisfactory way when the crisis burst upon the country. We speak perticularly of the nail trade. There is still some demand for nails and we are in hopes to see the mills kept going. Up to this time the workmen have been paid off in full every pay day, while at Pittaburgh they are only paying one-half. There is not a large stock of nails in the West, and the demand that was setting in so naturally must again set in sooner or later, for the people of the West are in a conally must again set in sooner or later, for the people of the West are in a condition to buy on account of their good crops. So far, therefore, as the mills have raw material on hand they may as well work it up into nails, and in doing so they will do great good not only to the workmen and the community, but, in the end, probably to themselves. We doubt not that the banks of Wheeling appreciate the importance of keeping the mills going, and that they have made and will make every effort to grant them accommodations. There is no city perhaps in the country on a sounder footing in a business way than Wheeling. Her business is shown by the fact that not even a sis shown by the fact that not even a

Business at Pattsburgh.

Things do not seem to go on as satisfactorily up at Pittsburgh as here in Wheeling. Business is much more demoralized. The Grape and Wine Crop of Ohio.

The grape production in the vicinity of Wheeling has scarcely amounted to an average yield this year. Perhaps prices, however, have made up for the difference in other parts of the country, and more particularly in the Sandusky region, the crop has turned out better than was anticipated earlier in the season. On the three Bass Islands the yield of Catawba has, perhaps, been the best in this region. The growers on North Bass have a good average and at the bandsome price of ten cis. per pound, paid by their own wine company on the island, have respect a good harvest. The same is true of the growers on Middle Bass, the yield in the main being half, and the price paid by Messrs. Wehrle, Werk & Sen as by the other companies double. Son, as by the other companies, double that in seasons of full yields. On Put-inthat in seasons of full yields. On Put-in-Bay many growers have harvested from one and a half tons to two and over per-acres, and realized ten cents a pound from the Put-in-Bay Wine Company. This company is making about 40,000 sallons of wine this season, and go into winter with 60,000 gallons of choice Of the crop on Kelley's Island wo informed, but understand that several of the growers have had a lair yield.
